

4. WRITING

Writing and reading go together! Once children have the ability to hold a marker or a thick crayon, give them plenty of opportunities to draw and write. Drawing and the beginnings of writing teach the brain to communicate language through symbols and that letters and words stand for sounds and print has meaning.

Suggested Books Found At Your Library!

Andrew Drew and Drew by Barney Saltzberg

Arlo Draws an Octopus by Lori Mortensen

Chester by Melanie Watt

The Day the Crayons Quit by Drew Daywalt

Every Little Letter by Deborah Underwood

If You Come to Earth by Sophie Blackall

Milo Imagines the World by Matt de la Peña

Purple, Green and Yellow by Robert Munsch

A Squiggly Story by Andrew Larson

The Last Two Crayons by Leah Freeman-Haskin